MOLE HILL CABERNET SAUVIGNON VINTAGE 2015, NAPA VALLEY

WINEMAKER NOTES

“Vintage 2015 was a study in contrasts in Napa Valley: very small yields of very high quality wines. A tantalizing nose of blue and black fruits leads to a velvety texture replete with sweet tannins, beautiful texture and layers, and a long lingering finish. It has those signature Howell Mountain black fruit aromas and flavors: wild blackberry, boysenberry, loganberry and black raspberry, framed by classic briar and spice notes supported by fine tannins and taut acidity. This is a wonderful Mole Hill bottling.”

MOLE HILL IS THE CROWN JEWEL OF LAIL VINEYARDS

It is an ultra-luxury wine bordering on decadent with its showcase of Howell Mountain seductive aromatics, velvety palate of fascinating complexity and a lingering finish which remains when you set down your glass. Production is small and demand is big. Produced only from the best growing seasons, this serious wine also has a sense of humor. Each year the path of the mole changes on the label designating a new vintage for your collection.

MOLE HILL STORY

Mole Hill was named in homage to a wine created by Robin’s father, famous vintner John Daniel, Jr.

The story goes that when Daniel’s great friend, Luis Martini Sr., made a wine in the 1940s, the irony of him labeling it Mountain Red was not lost on Daniel because Martini’s wine was from a rolling hillside vineyard versus the precipitous mountain vineyards of Europe. A brilliant man with a celebrated sense of humor and a particular love of puns, Daniel responded with Inglenook Mole Hill Red, whose whimsical label featured a very cute mole with a magnifying glass checking a small pile of dirt. The overtly flowery back label concluded with “...and this is a wine you will truly GO FER!”

In 1996, the Lail family acquired a special vineyard site high atop Howell Mountain, and named it Mole Hill. The vineyard’s west-facing gentle slope has shallow soils with rocks that rise to the surface like cream in coffee, creating a spartan home for the vines and generating a concentration of flavors in the grapes. These thin, rocky and dry soil conditions create Cabernet Sauvignon with firm structure, incredible varietal intensity, and excellent aging properties.

We now make a Mole Hill out of a mountain!
